Dear Cousins and Friends:

In this booklet I hope to share with you the fruit of several years of inquiry into the history of our family. The search for information has been a fascinating one, involving such diverse activities as studying tombstones in old country graveyards, pouring over dusty library volumes, and visiting with various members of the family.

This booklet is incomplete, as it will be so long as our family is living and growing. In addition, however, my limited resources of time and energy have meant that there are large and important gaps. I apologize for these. As the days go by, I hope that they will be filled in with supplementary pages.

To all of you who have by your interest and encouragement made this book possible, my hearty thanks.

I am especially grateful to Mr. Nelson H. Burlingame of California, Missouri, who was practically my sole source of information on the third through seventh generations of the Burlingame family. Also, it is with great pleasure that I acknowledge many interesting and helpful discussions with Dr. William P. Jacocks of Chapel Hill, North Carolina. Through his kindness I have had access to many pages of notes on our family, the result of years of patient search by Dr. Jacocks and by his brother, the late Charles West Jacocks of Bronwood, Georgia.

Finally, my thanks to our own Clayton E. Burlingame and Freeman D. Jacox, whose help in publishing and distributing this booklet has been most essential.

. . . And now, I dedicate this work to the generations yet to come.

Sincerely,

Marilyn E. Jacox
Family Historian

THE JACOX FAMILY

WHO WE ARE AND WHERE WE CAME FROM

Various rumors have had it that the Jacox family originated in Norman, France, in the part of France near Switzerland, in Holland, and in England. The claim that they came from Holland is probably explained by their intermarriage with Dutch settlers in and near Poughkeepsie, New York. More difficult to discount are the theories of French origin. Probably the family, if French, came from Normandy. In any event, the family was well established in England by 1600.

Bardsley, in his Dictionary of English and Welsh Surnames, refers to a Richard Jancock, mentioned in 1397 in the Calendar of Wills in the Court of Husting. He theorizes that the name means "son of John". The suffix - cock has been used for "the son of". From Jack-cock, the name could have become Jacock and, eventually, Jacox. Similarly, Wilcox could be traced to mean "son of William".

Another theory has been advanced by S. Baring-Gould in his book Family Names and Their Story. He claims that the suffix - cox has derived from the French "le cocq", meaning "the cook". The given name James could also have been abbreviated. Baring-Gould believed that Hancock derived from "John the Cook", while Jacox came from "James the Cook".

Correspondence between the late Charles West Jacocks, of Bronwood, Georgia, and a publisher of a British genealogical periodical refers to the probable arrival of this family in England about 1558, having departed from Calais. However, Baring-Gould's information may place the family in England several centuries before this. We do not know.

In England, the family seems to have lived in Stratford-on-Avon, Warwickshire, home of William Shakespeare. There are about twenty references to the family in the Registers of Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-on-Avon. These same Registers contain entries of the marriages of Shakespeare's two daughters and of the burial of his widow. Between 1604 and 1634, one Francis Jecoakes (name spelled differently in each entry - ranging from Gickockes to Jekcox) had baptized there five sons, Richard, Francis, Thomas, Hugh and William, and buried four children, including Simon and Hugh. The Francis Jecoakes who later appeared in this country may have been the son who was baptized there on January 4, 1618. More likely, it was the elder Francis who came to this country with his sons William and Thomas. Although we have records of the families of William and Thomas in this country, Francis Jecoakes seems not to have raised a family in America. There are still families in England, most of whom favor the spelling Jeacocks.

There are probably at least twenty ways of spelling the name, including Jeacock, Jeacoakes, Jacox, Jacocks, Jecoake, Jaycocks, Jecoakes and Jaycox. Even in our branch of the family, some spelled the name Jaycox - notably the family of Stephen N. Jaycox, Jr. The families living around Poughkeepsie favor the spelling Jaycox, while the branch of the family which settled in the Carolinas prefers Jacocks. In the early days, when relatively few people could write, changes in spelling were almost as frequent as the recording of the name on various documents. (Even today, many of us can testify to difficulties in getting others to spell our name properly).

THE EARLY YEARS IN AMERICA

Among the early settlers of Stratford, Conn., established in 1639, was one Francis Jecoakes (also spelled Jecoaxe). Apparently, he appeared there in 1646 and obtained lot number 38a. Nothing more is known of him there; he seems not to have stayed in Stratford very long.

The next reference to the family appears in the town records of Hempstead, Long Island. These refer to the disposal of land by one Francis Jacocks to his son-in-law,

Thomas Champion, 20 Feb. 1672/3. The following reconstruction of the early family in America has been made using material from the Champion genealogy in the January 1945 issue of American Genealogist, together with miscellaneous notes, especially excerpts from other portions of the records of Hempstead, Long Island. Much of this outline can be questioned. However, it represents the best reconstruction now possible. Many, many other notes on the family have been collected in the course of compiling this history. Since these do not seem to fit into the picture at this time, they are not given here. However, they are on file for those who may be interested in helping to fit more pieces into our family puzzle.

Records of Hempstead, Long Island, indicate that probably Francis Jacocks arrived there with his sons Thomas and William and with his daughter Frances. A claim that Frances married Thomas Champion has been disputed. Francis Jacocks died after 16 Jan. 1672.

A. Thomas Jacocks may have been the one baptized in Stratford-on-Avon 20 Mar. 1619. He died at Passayunk (later Philadelphia County, Pa.) before 11 Sept. 1677, leaving his widow Ruth. Their children were:

1. Thomas Jacocks, Jr. His first marriage was to Mary _____. He held land in Passayunk with his father, but sold this land 11 Sept. 1677 and moved away. He is believed to have moved to North Carolina, where he married Ann Huffton. They had one son, Jonathan. Thomas Jacocks, Jr., is believed to have died at Little River, North Carolina, in 1692. The family of Jonathan Jacocks of North Carolina has been very completely traced by the late Charles West Jacocks of Bronwood, Georgia, and by his brother, Dr. William P. Jacocks of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, and the complete record is available to those interested.
2. Joshua Jacocks also owned land in Passayunk with his father and brother. However, he returned to Hempstead before 27 July 1678, when he arranged through his attorney to dispose of these lands. His wife was a daughter of Richard Ellison of Hempstead. A son Thomas moved to Cape May, New Jersey, by the early 1700's, but resettled near Fairfield, Conn., shortly thereafter. Records of his family in Fairfield cover parts of several generations. A William Jacocks who appears in the Fairfield records about the same time as Thomas Jacocks may have been another son of Joshua Jacocks. William of Fairfield had three daughters.
3. Francis Jacocks leaves no further records. It is thought that he may have moved to Virginia.
4. William Jacocks, born in 1656, also owned lands in Pennsylvania (1681). 16 July 1689 he had a grant of land surveyed in Cape May County, New Jersey. This he sold 13 May 1699. In 1708 he appeared before a group of Pennsylvania property commissioners who questioned his right to an old land grant there, since he had been living on Stimpson's Island, near the mouth of the Morris River in New Jersey, for so many years. He was a wheelwright. His death must have occurred not long after 1708, as his wife, Sara, had remarried by 1714/15. Their children were:

Ruth Jacocks, married Jonathan Swain, later of Cape Fear, North Carolina.

Mary Jacocks, married Ebenezer Swain, Jonathan's brother.

Joshua Jacocks, left no further records.

James Jacocks, died a bachelor 21 July 1732. A copy of his will is in our records. He was a mariner.

5. Ruth Jacocks left no further records.

B. William Jacocks may have been baptized in Stratford-on-Avon 12 Aug. 1627. He died in Hempstead before 14 Dec. 1694, when his son David referred in a deed to his father, deceased. William and Joshua Jacocks (his elder brother Thomas' son, probably) were among the original landowners in Hempstead. The Hempstead Town Records refer to places called Jacocks' Neck and Jacocks' Swamp. William's children were:

1. David Jacocks, who 14 Dec. 1694 deeded 25 acres of woodland given him by his father to one Edward Hare. Earlier (1 Jan. 1693/4) he had deeded another parcel of land given him by his deceased father.
2. Jonathan Jacocks, for whom a guardian had been chosen after his father William, late of Hempstead, had died.
3. Benjamin, also a minor when his father died.
4. Grace.
5. Sarah.
6. Joseph Jecoakes, listed (together with David, William, Franses, Beniamen, Hannah and Grace) in the 1698 Hempstead Census. Probably he was the son of this William, since the offspring of William son of Thomas, then living in Hempstead also, did not include a son Joseph.

Now the record becomes spotty. Next mention of the family occurs in the history of the Hudson Valley, near Poughkeepsie, New York. There, in 1737, appeared one Benjamin Jecoakes, who paid Fishkill taxes between 1737 and 1740 and who married Jannetje Jones 1 July 1741. Also, Joseph Jecoakes was in South Precinct, Dutchess County, (now part of Putnam County) before 1744. This Benjamin and Joseph may well have been the children of William Jacocks, mentioned in the 1698 Hempstead Census. The name Benjamin Jacock(e)s was prominent in Dutchess County records until the late 1700's; presumably Benjamin had a son who also bore that name. There is some evidence that Joseph had sons named Isaiah and David.

The Revolutionary War Muster Roll of the Dutchess County Militia, 6 June 1778, lists Francis, Thomas, Thomus F., Benyani, and Thomas W. Jacocks. The United States Census of 1790 lists twelve Jeacocks households in Dutchess County, N. Y.; the United States Census of 1800 also lists twelve households in Dutchess County, plus four in nearby Rockland County.

The Dutch Reformed Church in Poughkeepsie has records of many marriages in which one party was a Jaycocks. Several of these marriages were to partners of Dutch descent.

LINEAGE OF STEPHEN AND PERMELIA CARPENTER JACOX

With this background, we take up the lineage of Stephen N. Jacox, Sr., (born 5 Jan. 1819, died 9 Dec. 1896), the father of all of our part of the Jacox family. His wife was Permelia Carpenter, whose lineage follows.

Jacob Carpenter, a native of England, immigrated to Washington County, Rhode Island, during the French and Indian Wars. His children were:

Jacob.

Peter.

Rhoda.

Philip, who married Mary Rhodes, daughter of Jacob Rhodes of Rhode Island. Her second husband was Jacob Brissie. Of her Freeman Eugene Jacox wrote his daughter, Elsie Jacox Ponty: "In my early childhood people used to live to a very old age. My greatgrandmother lived to be one hundred and twelve years, four months and twenty four days old. Lived on very plain food, were honest and paid all they owed, loved and tried to help each other. . ." Children of Philip and Mary Rhodes Carpenter were:

Ashel, married Phoebe_____.

Jeremiah, who married - according to one account - first Mary Belcher, second Mariah Weller, and third Sarah Weller. Another record states that Jeremiah Carpenter was born 7 Feb. 1800 and died in 1874 and that 2 Jan. 1828 he married Mary Ann (Polly) Brisee, who was born 26 May 1805 and died 25 Dec. 1839. Children included:

Mariah, married Darias Martin.

Jeremiah, married Elizabeth Underwood.

Sylvester, married Carrie Larkin.

Sally, married James Dempsey

Mary, married Nelson Scott. She was born 21 Feb. 1822, married 16 May 1841, and died 23 Aug. 1910. There were six children:

Warren, Monroe, Jeremiah, Maryette, Addie and Louise.

Permelia (born 5 Mar. 1825, died 21 Feb. 1885) married Stephen N. Jacox Sr. 13 July 1845.

Louisia.

Priscilla (born 15 Nov. 1828), married Henry Stoddard 11 July 1870.

The above Carpenter genealogy was supplied by the late Charles A. La Juett of Watertown, New York. Additional details were furnished by the family of the late Roy Ehart of Rochester, New York.

It is with Stephen N. Jacox, Sr. that the relation to the Burlingame family first appears, for Stephen's sister, Lydia Adelaide, married Asahel Burlingame, father of our branch of the Burlingame family.

One interesting glimpse into the more distant past is given by a letter written by Sylvia Burlingame Maynard (whose grandmother and grandfather here referred to are the parents of Stephen N. Jacox, Sr. and Lydia Adelaide Jacox Burlingame) to her niece, Elsie Jacox Ponty, 25 Apr. 1923. In part, it reads:

"Dear Elsie,

"I received your ever welcome letter and was glad to hear from you about great grandfather Jcockes. I suppose he lived in Poughkeepsie, but it was farm land then. Grandmother's name was Williams, and her father owned a farm where the city of Poughkeepsie is now. He had a peach orchard, and it was swampy land all around there. The home went to grandmother, but she was sick so much that she sold it and her and grandfather moved up to West Branch in the woods and made a clearing there and spent all the money for cows, and as he had nothing to feed them they died, and he was taken sick and got killed in the woods. A limb of a tree fell on his head and killed him when mother was a little girl. Mother said she just remembered seeing grandmother wash the blood off his head, so grandmother was left with ten children. This is about all I know . . ."

Atop a ridge overlooking the quiet village of West Branch, New York, lies an old cemetery, now accessible only by a short dirt road leading up the hill from the village Grange Hall. Among the many old stones are three bearing the following inscriptions:

"Wm. Jacockes, died Oct. 28, 1829 (1822 ?)."

"Sarah Jacockes, died Nov. 22, 1862."

"March The 14 1810 Gilbert Jacockes dyed aged 15 monts."

Near these stones are several others marking graves but bearing no inscriptions.

Beyond the cemetery is a corn field, and one or two hundred feet over the ridge is a small creek. Within sight of the cemetery is a rectangular area which is untilled; it is thick with brush and young trees, and investigation discloses rocks that were doubtless once a foundation for a house or barn. A short distance away are the remains of another building foundation.

A little speculation suggests that William and Sarah Williams Jacockes were the parents of Stephen and Lydia Adelaide Jacox and that the ruins nearby may well have been their house and barn. In those days it was customary to bury children on the family's land, and the Gilbert Jacockes stone is among the very oldest in the cemetery, if not the oldest. This stone is very crudely done, but the lettering has been etched remarkably deep and clear. Possibly William Jacockes took the stone from a creek bed and fashioned it into a marker for the grave of his little boy. The William and Sarah Jacockes stones have suffered much greater erosion. Probably both of them were placed at the same time, a suggestion borne out by their entirely similar size, shape, and lettering. Doubtless the Widow Jacockes had much more important things than a tombstone to spend her money for, what with some ten mouths to feed.

In the 1800's West Branch was an industrious community, boasting a carding mill, a grist mill, and a chair factory. The surrounding countryside was largely devoted to cattle farms. Many of the early settlers were Quakers, though the Jacockeses do not appear to have been. Family legend recalls that when Lydia and Stephen were small, Indians used to come into the family home at West Branch to spend the cold winter nights on the floor by the fire.

A conversation with Walter Rea Burlingame, youngest son of Lydia Adelaide Jacox Burlingame, confirms much of the above story. He adds that access to the cemetery used to be via a now abandoned road running from the West Branch-Point Rock road. He remembers the old house as a long, narrow structure atop the ridge, not far from a small creek. Apparently, the family remained there for quite a few years after the death of William Jacockes. Sarah's family, the Williamses (there are several Williams graves in the cemetery), sent Lydia Adelaide away to school. William Jacockes's tragic death occurred while he was felling a large tree which he planned to fashion into a yoke for his oxen. The tree toppled, as desired, onto a sapling. Helping his father was William, Stephen's older brother who later became a traveling preacher. When young William cut the sapling to ease the large tree to the ground, the sapling sprung against his father's head, killing him.

Stephen N. Jacox, Sr., served in the Civil War with the 186th Regiment, Company H, New York Volunteers. He is buried in the family cemetery at Belfort, New York, located on a land grant given him for his service in the war. Permelia Carpenter Jacox and their son William Henry Wayne are also buried there.

The children of Stephen and Permelia Jacox were:

Mary Mariah.
Stephen N., Jr.
Dewight

Freeman Eugene
Fred Franklin
William Henry Wayne

THE FAMILY OF DEWIGHT JACOX

Dewight Jacox served in the 186th Regiment, Company B, N. Y. Infantry, presumably during the Civil War. He died 18 Sept. 1924, supposedly at the age of 92. However, this would mean that he was born in 1832, an obvious impossibility. His wife, Jennie Zertwell, died in 1908 at age 89 years, according to the tombstone in Belfort, N. Y. (This, too, is highly improbable). There were five children, Frank, Lillian, Clinton, Walter and Widdie. Frank married Pearl MacDonald; their children were Freda, Rose, Sylvester, and Franklyn. Among Lillian's children is Tressie. Clinton and Walter are dead. Widdie married Ethel MacDonald; their children are Ivan, Mervin, Viola and Luella.

THE FAMILY OF WILLIAM HENRY WAYNE JACOX

William Henry Wayne Jacox married Lena Sauers. He died as a young man and is buried in Belfort, N. Y., with his parents. His children were Anna (married name, Sterling. Two children) and William, Jr.

OTHER BRANCHES OF THE FAMILY

Our family has spread far and wide, and very little is known about our relationship to other parts of the family. One exception occurs in the family of Thomas Jacocks, who died in Perquimans Precinct, N. C. in 1692. This branch of the family is fortunate in possessing a remarkably complete history, compiled by the late Charles West Jacocks of Bronwood, Ga., and by his brother, Dr. William P. Jacocks of Chapel Hill, N. C. A copy of this genealogy is in our family files. We have been fortunate in having access not only to this genealogy but also to many pages of miscellaneous family information compiled by Charles West Jacocks through the years. A brief account of his lineage may be of interest to other members of the family.

The first generation is counted as Thomas Jacocks, who appeared in Perquimans Precinct, N. C., by 1688, and who died there in 1692, leaving his widow and a six year old son, Jonathan I. This Jonathan I became a merchant and planter. His first wife, Elizabeth Collins, died in 1711, without children. He later married Mary Blount, daughter of a prominent family in eastern North Carolina. Among their five children was Jonathan Jacocks II. Like his father, he was a merchant and planter and was active in public affairs. He married Elizabeth Hill. There were six children, among them Jonathan Jacocks III, who married Elizabeth Bryan Hill, a distant relative. He, too, was active in public and private affairs. There were ten children, five of whom lived to maturity. Their son Charles West Jacocks I married Martha Ann Mullen. He was a farmer and was Clerk and Master in Equity for Bertie County, N. C., from 1825 until 1848. His eldest son, Jonathan Joseph Jacocks, married Emily Baker Nicholls on 21 Dec. 1869. He was among the 6000 members of the Confederate Army who surrendered at Appomattox. Later he became a hardware merchant and harness maker. He and his wife died a few days apart in 1892, leaving eight children, among them Charles W. Jacocks and Dr. William P. Jacocks, whose efforts have preserved their family history.

Through Dr. John T. Yoke, III of Chapel Hill, N. C., I have learned of a Jaycox family crest, which is borne on a signet ring in his possession. The crest shows a forearm uplifted, the hand bearing aloft a naked sword, with the motto "Per ardua" meaning "through difficulties". Dr. Yoke's maternal grandmother was Caroline Adelia Jaycox, who married John Samuel Fredericks of Syracuse, N. Y. Her grandfather, Dr. Yoke's great-great grandfather, was Joseph Jaycox, who married Caroline Swartwout, presumably of Poughkeepsie, New York. Joseph Jaycox had two sons, one of whom had three daughters. The other son, John McIntyre Jaycox, married Mary Catherine Cook. They had five daughters, including Caroline Adelia Jaycox, already mentioned. The family home was on upper James Street, Syracuse, New York. Some years ago, it burned, but a semicircular driveway still remains. Apparently, John and Mary Jaycox owned considerable land there, including a plot on which they laid out John, Jaycox and Mary Streets. Jaycox Street (now Division Street) was parallel to and between John and Mary Streets, which still bear those names. Apparently this branch of the family has no descendants who still bear the name Jaycox.

Correspondence has also been exchanged with Mr. James F. Reddick, of Fairfax, S. C., and Albany, Ga. He, too, has compiled considerable information on our family. The following quotation from his letter of 17 Mar. 1958 may be of some interest:

'My great-great grandfather was Gerard or Garret Jacocks, who married Mary Allen. He was drowned in the Hudson River around 1855. She moved to S. C.

His father was Francis (Frank) Jacocks of Staatsburg, Dutchess Co., N.Y. Francis' first wife's name was Sara Cornell, who was the widow Montfort when he married her. Among their children were Catherine, b. 1806 married David Rogers; Gertrude, married a Sturtevant; the above Gerard, Thomas, William, John, etc. Francis must have been born around 1775. This William may be your line . . .'

Other notes mention another son, Gilbert, for whom the infant Gilbert Jacockes, who died at West Branch, in 1810, may have been named.

There is no shortage of possible lineages for our family's William Jacockes. In addition to this suggestion, Mr. Reddick mentions the will of David Jacocks, Washington, Dutchess Co., dated 21 July 1809, including wife Mary (daughter of Wm. Thorn) and children William, George, Mary, Samuel, Jemima, baby Elena Maria, Isaac and Nicholas. Moreover, the will of Thomas Jaycocks of Clinton, Dutchess Co., dated 19 Aug. 1803, mentions his wife Mary and sons William and Samuel.

Perhaps some day our puzzle will be solved . . .

THE BURLINGAME FAMILY

IN DAYS OF OLD WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD . . .

The name Burlingame is the American version of the old Saxon name Byrlingaham, meaning home (or clan) of the son of Byrl (he with the coarse hair). Its Norman form was Birlingham, and its English form is Burlingham. One branch of the family in America - descendants of Charles, Christopher, Benjamin and Hopkins of the fourth generation - has retained the English form Burlingham.

There are several early references to the name - - to "Burlingham" in the Worcester Rolls (972 a.d.), to "Baerlingam" in the Crawford Charter (998), to "Berlingaham" in the Domesday Book (1086), to "Berlingeham" in the Pepe Rolls (1177), and to "Berlingham" in the Feet of Fines (1177). According to the Hundred Rolls of 1273 one Hugh de Byrlingham was then residing in County Norfolk, England. Many of his descendants apparently lived in this county, where there still remain three parishes named Burlingham St. Andrew, Burlingham St. Edmund, and Burlingham St. Peter.

The founder of the Burlingame family was probably one of the ancient Saxon tribal leaders who invaded the British Isles during the fifth century, settling near the Waveney and Yare Rivers, now part of County Norfolk. When the Normans invaded England in 1066, the Anglo-Saxons were defeated, and possibly the Burlingham family had to flee to Wales. Rumor has it that Roger Burlingame, the first Burlingame definitely known to have settled permanently in America, had an old Welsh Bible containing family records. This Bible is said still to be in the possession of some of his descendants in Cranston, R. I. The Burlinghams served as knights to the Bigod family (Earls of Warwick) and had extensive land holdings. There is in County Norfolk an old Burlingham Castle, now part of the Crown Lands, where Kaiser Wilhelm and his party stayed the last time he visited his grandmother, Queen Victoria of England.

Burke's General Armory (1884) describes one of the oldest and most common of the coats of arms of the Burlinghams of England thus: "Argent (sometimes or), on a cross purpure (another, gules), five fleurs-de-lis or." In somewhat plainer English, the shield is silver (sometimes gold), with a purple cross (sometimes a red cross) on which are five gold fleurs-de-lis.

ROGER BURLINGAME OF RHODE ISLAND

According to Hotens' History of Emmigration, on Jan. 2, 1634, one George Burlingham, age 20 years, sailed from London on the merchant ship "Bonadventure", bound for Virginia. There are no further records of him, though family tradition tells of his marriage and of the massacre of his family by the Indians, only a son, Roger, and a daughter, name unknown, surviving.

Since Roger Burlingame is the first member of our family about whom we have any definite information, he will be considered to be the father of our family in America. He is presumed to have been born about 1638 - whether in England or in America we do not know. Neither does all the evidence agree about Roger Burlingame's wife. Most sources name her as Mary Lippitt, daughter of John Lippitt, one of the original settlers of Rhode Island. However, the most recent information from Nelson Burlingame names Roger Burlingame's wife as Mary Barlingstone, said to be the daughter of William Barlingstone (also spelled Barlingstone). This would help explain the use of this unusual name for one of Roger's grandchildren. The marriage took place about 1663, and Roger and Mary Burlingame became the parents of four sons and six daughters:

1. John (see later notes).
2. Thomas (see later notes).
3. Mary, born 2 Nov. 1669, died 1760, married Amos Stafford.
4. Jane, married John Potter.
5. Alice born May 1673. Husband's name not known.
6. Mercy, born 1675. May have married Othniel Gorton.
7. Roger (see later notes).
8. Peter, died unmarried in 1712.
9. Elizabeth, born 9 Jan. 1684, died 5 May 1752, married Thomas Arnold and later William Spencer.
10. Patience, born 1685, died 8 Aug. 1746, married 15 June 1710 to Thomas Olney.

The first mention of Roger Burlingame appears in the records of Stonington, Conn., where he appeared as a witness in court in 1654. 16 Feb. 1656 he and Thomas Griffian purchased a 100 acre farm in Pequiot, Conn. They sold this farm 1 Mar. 1659. In 1660 he was listed on the roll of freemen of the colony of Warwick, Rhode Island. Providence, R. I., town papers record that "John Harrud, Roger Burlingame, and Thomas Ralph purchased from the Cooweesett Indians the deed bearing the date 6 June 1662 for 4000 acres at a place called Mashantatack and called by some Paquabuck". There is evidence that these three men were the first English settlers in Mashantatack, now Cranston, R. I. 25 Sept. 1671 they were ordered to "make the rate and levy the assessments on the inhabitants of Mashantatack". 1 Sept. 1687 Roger Burlingame was taxed 6s. 6 May 1690 he was elected a Deputy in the General Assembly, but he was not accepted because of question regarding the legality of the election. 7 June 1697 he was elected constable and 6 July 1698 became a member of the town council of Providence.

According to correspondence addressed to Elizabeth C. Burlingame of Olean, N.Y., by Nelson Burlingame, "Roger was a large landowner and owned lands both in Mashantatack and Warwick, R. I. The old iron ore beds at Cranston were on his homestead farm, and this ore was so soft that it could be worked over the open hearth and went into many of the guns used during the Revolutionary War, and it is said that the cannon used by Comm. Perry in the battle of Lake Erie were made from the iron mined from these ore beds on Roger's farm. 24 Apr. 1697, the council of war directed Roger Burlingame to take ten men and to 'search after the enemies: and upon Discovery of anie of them you are according to the best of your skill; to indeavor to Resist Expulse Kill and Destroy them according to the best of y/o/r indeavor but in Case you judge them to be two strong for you; you are to alarme as manie of our inhabitants as is yo wisdom y/o Can or may.' "

Records of the Oak Lawn, R. I., Baptist Church mention that for several years, until 1711, the "Friends" (Quakers) held their meetings in Roger Burlingame's Mansion House.

Again quoting from Nelson Burlingame's correspondence with Elizabeth C. Burlingame, "This house was built about 1664 and was torn down in 1856, it was 35 x 60 feet and was 2 1/2 stories high with a common plain roof each side and an ell at the northeast corner with the house facing south and was situated on the old furnace road and the remains of the old well and cellar can still be seen today. Also that a gambrel roofed house was south and not far from it and this was the home of his son Thomas Burlingame, and the well supplied both houses." 6 Sept. 1704 Roger Burlingame deeded to his son Peter this house and fifty acres, subject to the use and profits for Roger and wife while they lived. However, Peter died in 1712.

28 Nov. 1715 Roger Burlingame made his will, which was proved 13 Sept. 1718, following his death 1 Sept. 1718. The executor was to have been his wife Mary, but she had already died, so the eldest son, John, served. Overseers were his sons-in-law Thomas Arnold and Amos Stafford and his son Roger. All movables, household goods, cattle, and chattels were to go to his wife Mary for life, then to go to all his daughters and three granddaughters (Roger's daughter Freelove, Mercy's daughter Frances, and Alice's daughter Deborah) equally. To his son Roger he left 50 acres. To his grandson John went 50 acres to be laid out. To his son Thomas he gave "the rest of undivided land that was my son Peter's" with the provision "if I and my wife have not occasion to use lands herein given." His three sons John, Thomas, and Roger received 20 shillings each. The inventory of his estate included 199 pounds, 13 shillings, 8 pence, plus "a mare, 3 cows, 3 yearlings, calf, 2 sheep, 2 swine, old sword, wearing apparel, cash, etc."

SECOND GENERATION OF THE BURLINGAME FAMILY IN AMERICA

John Burlingame, eldest son of Roger and Mary Burlingame, was born in Mashantatack 1 Aug. 1664 and died in Cranston, R. I., 24 June 1719. 19 Nov. 1688 he was married in Warwick, R. I., to Mary Knowles Lippitt, born in Providence in 1669, died in Cranston 13 Jan. 1708, daughter of Moses and Mary (Knowles) Lippitt. She was the granddaughter of John Lippitt, who may have been the father of Mary, wife of Roger Burlingame. If so, John and his wife were first cousins before their marriage.

The first record of John's activities appears when he was taxed 3 shillings 1 Sept. 1687. 23 Dec. 1712 "he, having heired as eldest brother of Peter, deceased, the latter's deed of gift of their father's homestead land, dwelling, house, etc., which said Peter received from his father some time before; it was now agreed by John that notwithstanding he was entitled to the whole, yet, being willing that his brothers Thomas and Roger should share with him, he takes the house and 50 acres to himself and gives the rest equally to them. He provides that if their father and mother need assistance for their comfortable maintainence all three brothers are to be at equal charge." (John Osborne Austin, Genealogical Dictionary of Rhode Island. Munsell: Albany (1887) 1 Jan. 1713 he deeded his rights in this property to his eldest son John, again granting use of the house to his parents, Roger and Mary, while they lived. 6 Mar. 1719 his son David had a legacy from the will of his grandmother Mary Lippitt. 18 Mar. 1719 he sold the mansion house and 60 acres in Providence to Samuel Gorton for 390 pounds.

Children of John and Mary Lippitt Burlingame were:

1. John, b. 1690, d. 12 Feb. 1755, m. Sarah Biggs, d. 1 Nov. 1773
2. Roger III, b. 1692, d. 1 Apr. 1763, m. Sarah Baker.
3. James, b. 1694, d. Jan. 1768, m. Hannah Brown.
4. David, b. 5 Dec. 1706, d. 27 Jan. 1755, m. Mary Brown
5. Barlingstone, b. 25 June 1698, d. 12 Dec. 1767, m. Charity Colvin of Coventry.
6. Benjamin, d. 12 May 1742 at Surinam, m. Jerusha_____.
7. Elisha.

Daughters Persis, Patience, and Mercy are mentioned in some records.

Thomas Burlingame, second son of Roger and Mary Burlingame, was born on the Mashantatack Purchase 6 Feb. 1667 and died in Warwick 9 July 1758. 5 Oct. 1686 in Warwick he married Martha Lippitt, sister of Mary, who later married his brother John. Martha was born in Warwick in 1670 and died in Cranston in 1723. 29 Aug. 1726 he married Mrs. Hannah (Gardiner) Westcott, widow of Josiah Westcott and daughter of George and Tabitha (Tefft) Gardiner.

1 Sept. 1687 Thomas was taxed two shillings. 6 Dec. 1698, he was upheld by the council of war in the seizure of four guns from Joseph Williams, John Sayles, and George Potter, who were Indians. They were fined five shillings for each gun, three shillings going to Thomas and two shillings to the council of war and the guns returned to their owners. Providence Town Papers #17458 orders, "You, Thomas Burlingame, you are in Her Majestie's name Queen Anne of England, etc., to require you to take the conduct of 5 men besides yourself and with them to go forth upon a scouting order to range our coast and to see if you can make any discovery of our enemies, the French and Indians. You are to visit Woodstock (Conn.) and Oxford (Mass.) and to continue said service for seven days." Thomas was recorded to have made five such scouting trips.

28 Sept. 1715 he deeded to his son Moses 20 acres at Mashantatack near his own home. Other items were given to his sons Thomas, Samuel, Peter, Joshua, and Stephen. 5 June 1756 he made his will, which was proved 7 October 1758. Executors were his sons Thomas and Peter. To his wife Hannah he left a yearly allowance of six pounds, plus an additional annual allowance of six pounds that her son gave bond for, it being part of her dower of her former husband's estate. He left his sons Thomas, Moses, Peter and Joshua five shillings each. Also, his grandson Samuel received five shillings, as did his granddaughter Freelove Arnold and his grandson John Warner. Each of his daughters, Margaret Remington, Sarah Briggs, Freelove Gorton, Alice Westcott, and Patience Burlingame received five shillings. To his son Stephen went all real and personal estate after debts and legacies were paid. His inventory included "2 beds, warming pan, old gun, pewter, cooper's adze, cow, hetchel, stillyards, table, chairs, couch, money, scales, etc."

All of Thomas' children, named in his will, were by his first wife.

Roger Burlingame, Jr. leaves relatively few records. The dates of his birth and death are unknown, as are those of his wife, Eleanor.

16 Dec. 1699 Roger brought in a wolf's head, for which he received ten shillings bounty. 4 June 1708 he and Richard Searle, both of Mashantatack, divided lands among the two daughters of Thomas Ralph, deceased, having been appointed guardians. June 1722 he deeded to his son Josiah 20 acres at Mashantatack. 5 May 1746 he deeded to his son Jonathan 11 acres and 80 rods in Warwick. 11 Mar. 1747 in Coventry he and his son William and William's wife Alice sold land to James Sweet.

Children of Roger and Eleanor Burlingame included Josiah, Jonathan, William, Freelove, and Eleanor.

THE MIDDLE GENERATIONS

All of the information on the intervening generations of our branch of the Burlingame family has been supplied by Mr. Nelson H. Burlingame of California, Missouri. Data for the third through the seventh generation have been quoted directly from this correspondence.

Third generation. Joshua, son of Thomas and Martha (Lippitt) Burlingame, was born in Cranston, R. I. in 1706 and died in Voluntown, Conn., 16 Apr. 1788, in his 81st year. He married Anne Briggs, daughter of John and Sarah Briggs and granddaughter of the John Briggs who was of Naragansette, R. I., as early as 1671. 1 Jan. 1677 John Briggs and five others bought of Awashuevette, Chief Sachem of the Quohesette Indians, a tract of land in what is now Wickford, town of N. Kingston, R. I. Joshua Burlingame served as an ensign (Lt.) in the Militia of 1744 and marched on the Indian Alarm of Aug. 1759. His will proved at Voluntown, Conn., 7 Sept. 1790 mentions sons: Israel, Eleazer, and Nathan; daughters: Margaret, Lillas, and Mary.

THE FAMILY OF CHARLES FRANKLIN BURLINGAME

Charles Franklin Burlingame was born 22 Oct. 1848 or 1850 at Pillar Point or Montague, N. Y. Probably the earlier date and place are correct, since his younger brother, Francis, is known to have been born about 3 Jan. 1851. However, records supporting practically all four possible combinations of date and place have been found. Independent records suggest that his family moved from Pillar Point to Montague in 1850. He married his first cousin, Sarah Malvina Burlingame (called "Aunt Sade"; daughter of his father's brother Ira) Oct. 1869 at Pillar Point, N.Y. She died about 1916, and in 1917 he married Mrs. Amanda Forward, of Dayan Street, Lowville. There were no children by either marriage.

The following excerpt from a newspaper clipping, source unknown, possessed by his brother Walter Rea Burlingame is of interest:

"Mr. Editor:- - Charles F. Burlingame, whose death was chronicled recently, was one of the youngest, if not the youngest of those who served regularly in the Civil War. He came from fighting stock that settled in Rhode Island before 1640, in Scituate, where in the annals of Rhode Island it is found that the first one in America, of the name, married Mary Lippett, and at the time of the Revolution a <sup>lent</sup> descent married Barbara Briggs and moved to what is now Herkimer County, New York, fought in the Revolution, and later moved to Pillar Point, Jefferson County. Here Urial was born and served in the militia in 1812. He had the old homestead and married Sally Griswold and to them was born the second son, Ashahel, who married Lydia Jcockes. Their first child, born at Pillar Point, November 26, 1850, was Charles Franklin Burlingame. When he was two years old his parents moved with other pioneers to Montague, Lewis County.

"Even at that early age Charles Burlingame showed his choice of building as his special work by taking a pound of wrought iron shingle nails and driving them into a burch stump, imitating his father, who was shingling a barn. He grew up fast and at his 13th birthday was as large as his schoolmates of 18. Early in 1864 he went to enlist, but was brought back by his father. But again he left home in August, and his discharge says that he was enlisted the 29th day of August, 1864, under Capt. Jay D. McWayne, Company B, 186th Regiment, New York Volunteers. This was nearly three months before his 14th birthday, he giving his age as 16. He was discharged June 2, 1865, near Alexandria, Va., by reason of S. O. No. 22 of series 1865, headquarters, 2d Dist. of Alex. . . 9, ac telegraphic instructions from War Department, Adj. Series, official May 17th and 18th, 1865.

"Signed, Edward Rose,
1st I't. 56 Mas. Vols.,
A.C.M., 2-Div., 9 A. C.

"Jay McWayne, Capt. Co. B., 186th Reg't, Syr., Commanding Company B.

"He did not vote until the presidential election of 1872.

"Mr. Burlingame always kept his age as recorded on the war records. After returning home he taught school three years; married Sarah Burlingame, of Pillar Point, and built a home, and in 1874 sold the same and moved to Stewart Street, Lowville. Here he built a large house which still has on top of the roof, 'Built by Charles F. Burlingame, 1880'. This home he traded for a sash and blind factory on Rural Avenue and built a home there. Later the factory was destroyed by water and fire at the time that a cloudburst tore through the valley sweeping everything before it. In 1921 he began the dwelling on Rural Avenue, on what used to be called Valley Street, and moved there in the spring of 1923. He did all the work himself, allowing no one to help him in any way. When the Ilion Library was built he did a great deal of the fine work inside?"

THE FAMILY OF SYLVIA SOPHIA BURLINGAME

Sylvia Sophia Burlingame was born 23 Sept. 1852 at Montague, New York. At the age of 16 she moved to New York Mills, N. Y., and 23 Sept. 1874 she married Emerson Maynard in New York Mills. She died 28 Nov. 1931 at Spray, N. C. Children were:
